In case of real alarm...

Guidelines: How to act when the home-front is under attack

The home-front command website: www.oref.org.il
How to act once the siren is heard

- Recognizing the alarm: a minute long rising and falling siren is the sign of real alarm.
- If in a building: descend to the bomb-shelter: as long as it can be reached within 90 seconds from the moment the siren is heard (on the street: 60 seconds) – see bomb-shelters locations in the appropriate map. Or immediately enter a secure space or an inner room which is remote from openings, windows and external walls.
- If outside: enter the nearest staircase or take cover behind the nearest wall/shelter and lie facing the ground.
- If in a vehicle: exit vehicle and enter the nearest staircase or shelter.
- Stay tuned to the media for further instructions.

Sitting in the secure space:

- Stay as low as you can, preferably on the floor.
- Lean against an inner wall perpendicular to the external wall and as far as possible from the external wall and windows.
- Do not light fire or smoke.

Leaving the secure space:

- You may leave the bomb-shelter/secure space once 10 minutes have passed from the moment the siren was heard, unless instructed otherwise.
